II- Reading comprehension/2

Read the following passage, then answer the questions below:

Have you ever heard of an animal called a leopard? Maybe you've seen one at the zoo or learned about it at school. These big cats have light-colored fur that is covered in dark spots. They are known forbeing the strongest of the big cats. Sometimes they are mixed up with cheetahs, but they are not the same!

Leopards can be found in many parts of the world like India, China, and Africa. They can live anywhere from deserts to tropical places. Their darkspots help them blend with their surroundings. This is good because leopards are hunters. Their spots help them hide while they search forprey. The leopard's main food source is meat. It hunts weaker animals inorder to have food. It will even hunt for fish and crabs in the water because unlike most cats, leopards love the water.

Leopards are night animals. This means they prefer to sleep during the day and move around at night. They have amazing eyesight and can see much better in the dark than a human. While most leopards havelight fur with dark spots, there is a different type called the black leopard.It has dark fur with dark spots. It can be hard to see the spots becausethey blend into the rest of the fur. Unfortunately, the leopard population has been going down in recent years. This means there are fewer leopards being born. This is especially true in the countries outside ofAfrica.

READING COMPREHENSION (16 Marks)

Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Have you ever entered a rainforest? It is a special, dark place where trees grow very tall and millions of animals, insects, and plants live and grow there. A rainforest is found in hot and humid parts of the world. It rains a lot there. Trees grow so closely that their branches and leaves slow the rain to reach the ground.

Rainforests are about 6% of Earth's surface. The largest rainforest and the most enormous is the Amazon in South America. It covers almost five million square kilometers. The second largest rainforest is in Western Africa. There are also rainforests in America, Asia, Australia, and the Pacific Islands

Rainforests provide us with many things. Half of the world's species of animals and plants live in the rainforests. Eighty percent 80% of the food we eat first grew there. Twenty-five percent 25% of the medicine we take when we are sick is made of plants that grow only in rainforests. The Amazon Rainforest is called the "lungs of our planet" because it produces twenty percent 20% of the world's oxygen. It also gives us one fifth ($^1/_5$) of the world's fresh water.

With all the good things we get from rainforests, we are destroying them. People cut them down to make fields for cows or to grow plants. Destroying rainforests will result in more pollution, less rain, and less oxygen for the world.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage, then answer the questions that follow.

Scientists who study rocks are called geologists. It is the dream of geologists around the world to find out something new about the past. Scientists were very surprised when this happened to a five-year-old girl in England. Daisy Morris was walking on a beach with her family. Suddenly, she saw some black bones sticking out of the sand. She knew it was a fossil and so she dug it out and showed her family.

Her family took the fossil to a geologist called Mr. Simpson. Scientists then studied it for five years. Then, in 2013, they told the world that Daisy's fossil was of a flying dinosaur. In fact, it was a flying dinosaur that no one knew it existed before, so this dinosaur did not have a name. As Daisy discovered the dinosaur, the scientists called it Daisy Morris Flying Dinosaur. Scientists think it is 250 million years old. Daisy's dinosaur is now in the National History Museum in London.

Mr. Simpson said, "I knew that I was looking at something very special. And I was right." He was very happy that Daisy found the dinosaur because it was going to be washed away into the sea and lost forever. All Daisy's family and friends are very proud of her. She has so many that her family says that her bedroom is like a museum. Daisy wants to be a geologist when she grows up.

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

I first met 8-year-old Katy on a rainy afternoon. I was a nurse at a hospital. Katy was there because she felt a lot of pain. The doctors located a problem at the base of her brain. I knew she was special. I'll always remember her.

When I entered Katy's room, she was not in her bed. She was in a chair next to Sara, a little girl. Though Katy was in pain, she was playing with Sara. It took a lot of effort for Katy just to sit in the chair. But she continued playing with Sara because it made Sara happy.

Katy was always smiling and never appeared to be in pain. She refused to just lie in bed. One day I found her painting a picture. Later, she gave it to one of the older patients. Another day she went outside to get flowers for another sick girl. Katy made everyone smile.

The doctors hurried to fix the problem in Katy's brain. The operation was successful! Katy soon recovered and was able to leave the hospital a month later.

I have had a long career as a nurse. I have met many patients. However, I have never met another girl like Katy. Even after she got better, she still came to the hospital. She played various games with the young patients. She read many books to the older patients. She is a hero to me and everyone else at the hospital because of her kind heart.

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Would you like to become a "teleworker"? Teleworkers are people who work for companies, but not in companies' buildings. This means that they do company work online at home, Teleworkers communicate with their bosses by mobile phones or e-mails. They usually send information from their own computer to the office computer by the internet.

Teleworking is becoming more and more popular in Britain, USA and other countries all over the world. It is also spreading in many Arab countries . There are many reasons for this impressive achievement that people really admire. The biggest advantage for companies is that teleworking lowers the spending of money. Having fewer workers at work means having less office space. Also, computers are now quicker and easier to use, and the prices keep going down. For a company, it is cheaper to train people on computer skills and give them a personal computer to use at home.

However, before you apply for a job as a teleworker, you should ask yourself if it is really the best thing for you. Bill Smith, who worked for a big company, did not enjoy his last three months at home. He often fell asleep at the computer because he did not have anybody to talk to at home. He decided to leave his job as a teleworker and started a new job in a company where there were five other people in one small office.
