B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage, then answer the questions that follow.

Scientists who study rocks are called geologists. It is the dream of geologists around the world to find out something new about the past. Scientists were very surprised when this happened to a five-year-old girl in England. Daisy Morris was walking on a beach with her family. Suddenly, she saw some black bones sticking out of the sand. She knew it was a fossil and so she dug it out and showed her family.

Her family took the fossil to a geologist called Mr. Simpson. Scientists then studied it for five years. Then, in 2013, they told the world that Daisy's fossil was of a flying dinosaur. In fact, it was a flying dinosaur that no one knew it existed before, so this dinosaur did not have a name. As Daisy discovered the dinosaur, the scientists called it Daisy Morris Flying Dinosaur. Scientists think it is 250 million years old. Daisy's dinosaur is now in the National History Museum in London.

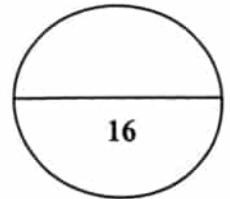

Mr. Simpson said, "I knew that I was looking at something very special. And I was right." He was very happy that Daisy found the dinosaur because it was going to be washed away into the sea and lost forever. All Daisy's family and friends are very proud of her. She has so many that her family says that her bedroom is like a museum. Daisy wants to be a geologist when she grows up.

B. Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Golden Beach Town is a wealthy neighbourhood in South Florida, USA. Many rich and famous people spend the autumn and winter months from October to April there. In the summer, when temperatures get too hot, they leave town. They hire security guards to protect their homes when they are away.

All the security did not, however, stop a 19-year-old traveller from entering the villa of a rich businessman last year. It happened on Sunday, the fifteenth of January, just before seven in the evening. The young man managed to get into the villa through a second floor bathroom window and climbed in. He looked around, liked what he saw, and stayed in the house for the next three months. He was never caught, despite the guards, maids and gardeners who were working in the house and on the grounds every day.

While he was staying in the house, the stranger ate everything in the fridge, freezer and cupboard, ran up a $7.000 telephone bill and wore or sold most of the men's clothes in the closets. When the owner returned at the end of April, he found his uninvited guest fast asleep in his bed-just like a little child! The young man is now a guest in a Florida prison.

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Would you like to become a "teleworker"? Teleworkers are people who work for companies, but not in companies' buildings. This means that they do company work online at home, Teleworkers communicate with their bosses by mobile phones or e-mails. They usually send information from their own computer to the office computer by the internet.

Teleworking is becoming more and more popular in Britain, USA and other countries all over the world. It is also spreading in many Arab countries . There are many reasons for this impressive achievement that people really admire. The biggest advantage for companies is that teleworking lowers the spending of money. Having fewer workers at work means having less office space. Also, computers are now quicker and easier to use, and the prices keep going down. For a company, it is cheaper to train people on computer skills and give them a personal computer to use at home.

However, before you apply for a job as a teleworker, you should ask yourself if it is really the best thing for you. Bill Smith, who worked for a big company, did not enjoy his last three months at home. He often fell asleep at the computer because he did not have anybody to talk to at home. He decided to leave his job as a teleworker and started a new job in a company where there were five other people in one small office.

- Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

Some people are driven by curiosity. They love to ask questions. They want to understand how everything works. This is the case with Dr. Mae Jemison. Ever since she was young, she always had the mind of a scientist. Mae was born in the year 1956 in Alabama. Her family moved to Chicago a few years later. That way, she, her brothers, and her sister got a better education. Her father worked as a roofer and a carpenter. Her mother was a school teacher. Both her parents encouraged their children to keep learning and follow their dreams. Mae's mother even helped her do experiments. Mae enjoyed that very much because this is the thing she always wanted.

Mae was born with a love to learn. She graduated from high school with good marks. Then, she got a degree in engineering. But Mae didn't want to study or do just one thing. She wanted to try many things. She chose to study medicine next. She quickly became a doctor. In 1983, she joined the Peace Corps and worked as a medical officer in Africa for over two years. After this, Mae moved to Los Angeles and worked as a doctor. She enjoyed her job, yet she still had the childhood dream of going to space. She joined the NASA and became an astronaut in 1992. She became the first African American woman to go to space. She remained in space for a total of eight days. Shortly after her trip to space, she changed her career and worked as a teacher at Dartmouth College.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following text carefully then answer the question below:

November 11th is a Remembrance Day in Canada. They remember the sacrifices made by the soldiers in wars. They also honour those who continue to serve during times of war and peace. But did you know that they also honored animals who have served in the armies next to soldiers? These animals have received a special medal for being brave in wars. It's called the PDSA Dickin Medal! The medal is known around the world. It's been awarded to 36 dogs, 32 pigeons, 4 horses and 1 cat.

Gander, the dog, joined the army in many jobs, and they treated him like a friend soldier. His job was to bark and bite at the legs of the enemy and scare them. Gander saved the lives of seven wounded soldiers during the Second World War.

Beach, the pigeon, served with the Army as a carrier pigeon during the Second World War. It delivered messages between soldiers in the field, sailors on ships and pilots. Soldiers wrote messages on very small pieces of paper. They were put on the legs of the pigeons. It was a dangerous job, in all kinds of weather.

Warrior was known as "the horse the enemy could not kill." He arrived on the front lines in 1914. He was trapped in a burning stable and made it out. The horse, Warrior, was honored because his bravery was an inspiration to the soldiers who faced their fears every day.

Read the following text carefully, and then answer the questions below:

Zebras are among the most beautiful animals on earth. With their bold black-and-white stripes, they stand apart from other African animals. They roam freely over the large African grasslands. Many people don't know it, but the zebra is one of the few wild horses left in the world today. All horses, including zebras, belong to the same animal group, known as Equus.

Zebras are shorter than most other horses and their ears are larger but, are zebras black with white stripes or white with black stripes? In fact, they are black with white stripes. If you shaved a zebra, it would be almost completely black! You would hardly recognize it. Only zebras have stripes-even their manes are stripped!

One of the most commonly asked questions about this animal is, what does a zebra sound like? Do they sound like horses or donkeys? The answer is that zebras do often sound a lot like donkeys, but they sometimes make rather unusual noises. These noises can be made for a wide variety of reasons, including greeting other zebras or warning threats to stay away.

Many zebras have been killed for their beautiful skins. Fortunately, things are being done to protect zebras now. African governments and wildlife groups have set up nature preserves, where zebras can live without the risk of being hunted. (225 words)

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following text carefully then answer the question below:

It's not hard to see why cheeseburgers, fries, pizza, and ice cream are popular. They're delicious! But not everything that tastes good is good for you. The next time you want to enjoy a snack, you may consider smart snack choices.

Nearly everyone loves french fries made from potatoes. Did you know that other root vegetables taste great, too? Root vegetables can be a good and healthier choice for a smart snack. They include beets, carrots, and sweet potatoes. Root vegetables are easy to grow. They need loose soil and cool weather. They contain important vitamins and minerals, and they can all do the jobs a potato can do. Carrots are satisfying and crunchy if they are raw. Cooked beets and sweet potatoes are flavorful. To enjoy these vegetables, you need to peel their skin with a knife and cut them into strips, just like fries. They can be served hot or cold in a variety of dishes from sandwiches to salads and even juices. When we cook beets and sweet potatoes, they become sweeter. Give them a try! You'll forget all about french fries.

Discovering new foods can be fun. Plus, if you eat healthful foods, you'll be less likely to get sick. You'll also have more energy to run and play. You will also be able to think more clearly and for longer periods of time. So start eating smart snacks!

- Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

People often have to use a vehicle of some kind to travel great distances. Some people now use bicycles, motorbikes, or cars. A car has an engine called a combustion engine. That means it gets the power to move by burning gas or petrol as fuel. The car runs on tyres filled with air. Most people however probably travel by buses that also have combustion engines like cars. However, vehicles, like cars, with combustion engines burning fuel, give off gases that are dangerous for your health. They pollute the air and create a risk for us.

In most countries now, there are electric trains which use electricity and do not pollute the air. They go at great speeds on their rails. In some countries, they go almost as fast as some planes. Ships and boats have propellers to move them. A propeller causes a ship or aircraft to move, it consists of two or more blades that spin at high speed. The propellers turn very fast in the water and that pushes the ship. A rudder, like the tail of a fish, is used to guide it.

Some planes use propellers that turn in the air. However, most planes have jet engines. They push the plane with great force. If you go to an airport where the planes land you can see the jet engines on the wings of the plane, though on some planes they are near the tail.

- Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

People often have to use a vehicle of some kind to travel great distances. Some people now use bicycles, motorbikes, or cars. A car has an engine called a combustion engine. That means it gets the power to move by burning gas or petrol as fuel. The car runs on tyres filled with air. Most people however probably travel by buses that also have combustion engines like cars. However, vehicles, like cars, with combustion engines burning fuel, give off gases that are dangerous for your health. They pollute the air and create a risk for us.

In most countries now, there are electric trains which use electricity and do not pollute the air. They go at great speeds on their rails. In some countries, they go almost as fast as some planes. Ships and boats have propellers to move them. A propeller causes a ship or aircraft to move, it consists of two or more blades that spin at high speed. The propellers turn very fast in the water and that pushes the ship. A rudder, like the tail of a fish, is used to guide it.

Some planes use propellers that turn in the air. However, most planes have jet engines. They push the plane with great force. If you go to an airport where the planes land you can see the jet engines on the wings of the plane, though on some planes they are near the tail.

A. From a, b, c and d, choose the most suitable answer: (6X2=12 Marks)

09. Which of the following is the best title of the text?

- a- Jet Engines
- b- Propeller Blades

B. Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Today we see writing all around us. There is writing in books, on signs, and on computer screens. Most children learn to read and write at an early age and use these skills to gather and share information in books, magazines, letters, and e-mail messages. Businesses depend on written words to communicate and to sell products. Governments rely on written documents as the basis for their laws. We would be lost without writing.

The earliest people had no system of writing. Writing developed over thousands of years in different cultures around the world. Peoples in ancient Egypt, China, and elsewhere all made important participations. Before writing as we know it existed, drawings were used as a form of communication. Rock drawings have been found in many places.

Modern forms of writing began when people learned to use symbols, such as letters and words. At first, they used pictures that stood for words. For example, a picture might show a hunter, the weapons the hunter used, and a pair of deer the hunter killed. The Chinese used tens of thousands of signs. With their system, they could write proper names and new words.

To make writing easier, things had to be simplified in some way. The answer was the development of alphabets. They were at least one type of modern writing because, as we know, the modern English alphabet uses 26 letters.

Nowadays, every house produces electronic rubbish (or e-rubbish) such as an old TV or a computer printer, or an out-of-date mobile phone that we no longer need. But, when we throw these everyday items away, not many of us know or even think where these objects are taken to. The American journalist and photographer, Peter Essick, decided to follow this e-rubbish to several different countries around the world.

In particular, Essick found a lot of e-rubbish goes to Ghana. There, he saw mountains of old computers in the local markets. The sellers resell some of them but not much equipment works. Instead, they recycle the broken computers by melting the parts inside. These parts contain a little metal such as gold sometimes. However, this process of recycling is dangerous for the workers because it produces a lot of toxic and killing chemicals.

As a result of his journey, Peter Essick thinks that it's important to stop exporting e-rubbish. It's bad for the environment and it's bad for people's health, too. Instead, he believes producers need to produce more eco-friendly electronics in the future; in other words, electronic products which you can recycle cheaply, safely and in the country where they were made.

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

Water is the most important liquid we know. It is everywhere we look. It is in the ground and in the air we breathe. All animals, plants and humans need water to live. The human body is made up largely of water. Up to 75% of our body is water. Although we can live without food for a few weeks, we would die within a few days without water. The human body needs about 2 to 3 litres of water a day to survive.

How much of our planet is made up of water? Most of the world's water, about 97% is saltwater in the oceans. Only 3% is the freshwater in lakes, rivers and glaciers. Not all water is safe to drink or use. Some need to be cleaned. Drinkable water that is free of germs and chemicals is called potable water.

Water has been important for people for thousands of years. We use water in our houses for cooking, bathing and washing dishes. Countries with many mountains and rivers use the power of water to make their own electricity.

As the population of the Earth grows, we have to be more careful about how much water we use. There are many simple things you can do to save water. Just by turning the water off while brushing your teeth, you can save up to 200 gallons of water a month. When washing a car or a bike, fill a bucket instead of running the hose. Take action and save Earth's water.

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

Water is the most important liquid we know. It is everywhere we look. It is in the ground and in the air we breathe. All animals, plants and humans need water to live. The human body is made up largely of water. Up to 75% of our body is water. Although we can live without food for a few weeks, we would die within a few days without water. The human body needs about 2 to 3 litres of water a day to survive.

How much of our planet is made up of water? Most of the world's water, about 97% is saltwater in the oceans. Only 3% is the freshwater in lakes, rivers and glaciers. Not all water is safe to drink or use. Some need to be cleaned. Drinkable water that is free of germs and chemicals is called potable water.

Water has been important for people for thousands of years. We use water in our houses for cooking, bathing and washing dishes. Countries with many mountains and rivers use the power of water to make their own electricity.

As the population of the Earth grows, we have to be more careful about how much water we use. There are many simple things you can do to save water. Just by turning the water off while brushing your teeth, you can save up to 200 gallons of water a month. When washing a car or a bike, fill a bucket instead of running the hose. Take action and save Earth's water.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following text carefully, then answer the questions below:

Would you like to become a “teleworker”? Teleworkers are people who work for companies, but not in companies. This means that they do company work at home, usually on computers. Teleworkers communicate with their bosses by mobile phones or e-mails. They usually send information from their own computer to the office computer by the Internet.

“Teleworking” is becoming more and more popular in Britain, USA and other countries all over the world. There are many reasons for this development. The biggest advantage for companies is that teleworking lowers the companies’ spending of money. Having fewer workers at work means having less office space. Also, computers are now quicker and easier to use, and the prices keep going down. For a company, it is cheaper to train people on computer skills and give them a personal computer to use at home.

However, before you apply for a job as a teleworker, you should ask yourself if it is really the best thing for you. Bill Smith, who works for a big company, hasn’t enjoyed his last three months at home. He often falls asleep at the computer because he doesn’t have anybody to talk to at home. He decides to leave his job as a teleworker and start a new job in a company where there are five other people in one small office.
