Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

People live in many different countries around the world. There are some countries that are overcrowded. There are other countries that have very few people living in them. Why is that? Do people choose where to live? The two main reasons that influence people who are deciding on a location to live are climate and resources.

Climate is the usual weather conditions in a region. Areas that have extreme weather are not very popular places to live. The North Pole and South Pole at the top and bottom of the world are good examples. They are very beautiful places but they are too cold and windy for people to live in.

Natural resources are things that we get from nature that help us survive. Each region has different resources. Each region is a good place for different groups of people. People who enjoy the beach can make their living from the ocean. They can catch and sell fish. Some people prefer to farm. They can grow plants and animals near rivers and valleys. The desert is very hot and dry, but it often has valuable resources like oil. If there is oil, people may be willing to live in the desert heat.

Newspapers carry the news of the world. Newspapers provide information and general knowledge. They provide news about a country's economic situation, sports and games. Reading newspaper makes a good habit and it is already part of the modern life. Newspapers provide a wide range of information including advertisements on new products, sales, jobs and restaurants.
