When people build their houses, the first thing they have to think about is the weather. If they live in a place where there is much rain, the most important thing is to keep out the water. If there is sunshine for much of the year, houses will have to keep out heat. In very cold places, the most important thing is to stay warm.

People also have to think about the available materials. Houses around the world are built of different materials. These materials can be natural or made by people. Natural materials are mud, stones, trees and other plants. Bricks, cement, and metal are materials made by people.

The appearance of the house tells us a lot about the weather condition in the country it belongs to. Rainy countries usually have houses with high hard roofs, so that the rain runs off. In snowy countries, houses have the same roofs. In hot places with little wood, people make mud bricks and build houses with them. These houses have thick walls to keep out the heat. They also have big windows so that the air can cool them. The shape of the house is not important, but the most important thing, is to feel comfortable in it.

They cultivate pearls in the warm water around the islands. They also grow rice and vegetables. Japan is mainly an industrial country. Some of the best products like radios, televisions, computers, cameras and cars come from Japan and they are famous all over the world. So, "Made in Japan" is a trustful label.

The Japanese are very polite and active people. They work hard. They even don't like holidays. They love flowers and they welcome their visitors warmly. Old Japanese usually wear traditional clothes called kimonos. The Japanese don't sit on chairs when they eat; they kneel on the floor. They don't use knives, forks or spoons. They use wooden chopsticks. Their favourite food is raw fish and rice.

The Japanese writing is very strange. It has no alphabet as in Arabic or English. It has a system of pictures and their writing goes from top to bottom. Japan is a good model of a modern country.
