B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage, then answer the questions that follow:

Any time an astronaut gets out of a vehicle while in space, it is called a spacewalk. A spacewalk is also called an EVA. EVA stands for extravehicular activity. The first person to go on a spacewalk was Alexei Leonov. He was from Russia. The first spacewalk was on March 18, 1965. It was 10 minutes long.

Astronauts go on spacewalks for many reasons. Spacewalks let astronauts work outside their spacecraft while still in space. Astronauts can do science experiments on a spacewalk. This helps scientists learn how being in space affects different things. Spacewalks also let astronauts test new equipment. They can repair satellites or spacecraft that are in space instead of bringing them back to earth to fix.

When astronauts go on spacewalks, they wear spacesuits to keep themselves safe. These suits are pressurized. This means that the suits are filled with oxygen which astronauts need to breathe. Astronauts also have the water they need to drink. Once in their suits, astronauts breathe pure oxygen for a few hours. Breathing only oxygen helps get rid of all the nitrogen in an astronaut's body. If they didn't get rid of the nitrogen, the astronauts might get gas bubbles in their body when they walked in space. These gas bubbles can cause astronauts to feel pain in their shoulders, elbows, wrists and knees.

When on a spacewalk, astronauts use safety tethers to stay close to their spacecraft. Tethers are like ropes. One end is hooked to the spacewalker. The other end is connected to the vehicle. The safety tethers keep astronauts from floating away into space.

B- Reading (16 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Bethany Hamilton is an American professional surfer. On October 31, 2003, she and her friend's family were surfing in Hawaii. It was a pleasant day, and she was enjoying the sunshine and relaxing on her surfboard. Then suddenly, she was attacked by a tiger shark.

The shark bit off Bethany's arm. Surprisingly, she felt no pain at first. She later said she did not realise she had been bitten until she saw blood in the water. Bethany told her friend, Alana, that she had been attacked by a shark. Alana told her not to joke about something like that. But as Alana swam closer to Bethany, she knew that it was not a joke at all.

Fortunately, the shark disappeared in the open ocean. Alana and her father took Bethany back to the beach. Alana's father tried to stop the bleeding, but it kept increasing. Then they quickly took her to hospital where she was given the necessary treatment.

Bethany spent a week in the hospital, but within a month she was surfing again. She taught herself how to surf with one arm. The next year, she won the National Scholastic Surfer Association's top award which was her goal before her injury. Then, she won many other awards for her surfing, and in 2004, Bethany wrote a book about her experience. In 2011, the book was made into a movie. Bethany herself performed all the surfing scenes.

Bethany continues to surf professionally and to share her inspirational story with other physically challenged people. "Courage doesn't mean you don't get afraid," she says in her book. "Courage means you don't let fear stop you."

B. Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Living in a city has both advantages and disadvantages. On the bright side, it is often easier to find work and there is usually a choice of public transport, so you do not need to own a car. Also, there are a lot of interesting things to do and places to see. For example, you can eat in good restaurants, visit museums and theatres. What is more, when you want to relax, you can usually find a park where you can sit on a wooden seat and read a book. All in all, city life is full of activities which never let you feel bored.

However, for every plus, there is a minus. Living in a city is often very expensive. It is particularly difficult to find a good, cheap house. What is more, public transport is sometimes very crowded especially in the rush hour. Even the parks can become full of people of all ages particularly on weekends when it seems that everyone is looking for some open space and green grass. Last of all, despite all people there, it is still possible to feel very lonely in a city.

In conclusion, I think that city life can be particularly appealing to young people, who like the enjoyment of the city and do not mind the noise and pollution. However, many people, when they get older, and especially when they have young children, often prefer the peace and fresh air of the countryside.

a. Choose the correct answer from a , b , c and d: (6x2 = 12 Ms)

9. The best title for this passage is:
   a. Rush Hour

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Dr. Abdul Rahman Al-Sumait was a Kuwaiti Islamic scholar, medical practitioner, qualified doctor but more importantly, a humanitarian. He was famously known for his voluntary and philanthropic works in more than 29 African countries.

Al-Sumait's interest in charity work started as a secondary school student when he observed poor workers waiting for transport in the heat. With some friends he decided to save up from their pocket money and buy an affordable car to drive these workers for free. At university, Al-Sumait used most of his salary to purchase Islamic books and distribute them at mosques.

Al-Sumait became interested in Africa when he felt and saw that it was being neglected. In 1981, Al-Sumait founded the Africa Muslims Agency, which was later renamed as 'Direct Aid' society. It provides extensive humanitarian assistance to poor Muslims throughout Africa. He also established Kuwait Relief Agency and was the chief editor of Al-Kawthar Magazine. By the time he was 35 years old, he decided to move and live in Africa. He dedicated 29 years of his life there helping millions of children with education, shelter and religion.

Although Al-Sumait's journey in Africa was a major success, it was full of difficulties. Because of his long travels in African jungles, he got high blood pressure, diabetes, and malaria. In Mozambique, Kenya, and Malawi, he was attacked by deadly snakes. Some dangerous armed groups in these areas also tried to kill him because of his impact on the poor. - Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

I think that I have the best job in the world. I am a park ranger. To get a job like mine, you must study geology, forestry, or another earth science. You must work very hard, but the job is rewarding. I enjoy working outdoors and sharing the wonders of nature with the visitors to my beautiful park. One of the best parts of my job is working alone. I lead tours on my own, and some nights I get to sleep in a cabin in the woods with only the bears and owls around me!

I wanted to work as a park ranger since I was young. At first, I did not know if I would be able to do it. My grades in science were not always the best. But I was determined. Camping, hiking, and canoeing every summer filled my heart with joy. I believed that working in a park would be a dream come true.

This is my fifth year working as a park ranger. I've worked at three different parks around the state. I've learned so much about fish, trees, and all kinds of wildlife. Some weekends, I help young campers reach their campsites on the far side of the lake. Once I even taught a family how to pitch a tent. Not everyone knows how to make a fire or paddle a canoe. I feel like I make a real difference when I help park visitors enjoy the outdoors more. The best part of my job is helping people discover new ways to experience the amazing outdoors!

B. Reading Comprehension:(16m)

Read the following passage carefully, then do as required below:

John Chaney, one of America's most famous writers of adventure tales, was born in California in 1876. During his life, John worked at many jobs. His various life experiences would become the source for his writing.

John loved to read. As a teenager, he spent many hours reading books at the Oakland, California, public library. He joined college at the University of California at Berkeley, but he stayed for only six months. He thought Berkeley was dull and wanted to do something exciting.

While living in different cities, John wrote stories about working people. He knew and understood their problems. He worked as a sailor, farmer, factory worker and a miner, to name just a few of his many jobs.

John grew up near the waterfront in Oakland. When he was fifteen years old, he bought a small sailboat called a sloop. Later he sailed to Japan on a schooner, which is a much larger sailing boat.

As an adult, John worked as a miner digging for gold. During this time, he discovered that people he worked with enjoyed listening to the stories he made up with his rich imagination. John entertained the miners with story after story. Later, using his experiences, he created many more colorful stories.

John lived an exciting life. Once John determined that he was going to be a writer, nothing could stop him. His goal was to write at least one thousand words every day. As a writer, he published fifty-one books. He was the best-selling and highest-paid author of his day. Many people also considered him to be the best writer.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following text, and then answer the questions that follow:

Tomatoes are commonly called vegetables, but they are actually fruits. They can be eaten raw or used in cooking. Tomatoes are grown in all warm areas of the world.

Tomato plants generally have many spreading branches. The leaves are hairy and have a strong smell. The flowers are yellow and grow in groups. Tomatoes can be round or oval or shaped like a pear. When they are ready, the fruit usually changes into red or yellow colour. The tomato contains many small seeds covered by a jellylike tissue. It has most of the tomato's vitamin C.

Despite the popularity of tomatoes, it was only 200 years ago, that they were thought to be toxic. When tomatoes came to Europe, people did not eat them. Doctors said that tomatoes would make people sick. Therefore, people just grew tomatoes because they looked nice. Now, people from all over the world eat tomatoes. Tomatoes are used in sauce, soup, juice, and ketchup.

Doctors advise people to eat tomatoes because these red fruits have many useful vitamins like vitamin A, which supports immunity, vision, and skin health. They are also a good source of vitamin K, which is good for the bones. Eating tomatoes may also help support heart health and weight loss.

Whether you enjoy them fresh in salads, cooked in sauces, or sun-dried, tomatoes are useful and can add flavour and colour to different dishes. So, go ahead and try the taste of these exciting red fruits!

B. Reading Comprehension:(16m)

Read the following passage carefully, then do as required below:

An owl is a bird. Owls are nocturnal animals. Nocturnal animals are animals that are awake at night and asleep during the day. Owls are predators, that means they hunt the food they eat. Owls feed on mice and other small animals, insects, and even fish. That's why many farmers keep owls on their farms to get rid of the mice there. The owls' soft, fluffy feathers make their flight almost silent. They have very good hearing which helps them to hunt well in the dark. Their sharp beaks and claws make it easy to catch their prey. Owls lay about three to four eggs. They nest in holes in trees and in mountains. They usually lay their eggs in spring.

The owl's eyes are unusual. Like most predators, both the eyes of the owl face front. The owl cannot move its eyes. Owls can see very well far away but they can't see close very well at all. Fortunately, they use their ability to see far away even in low light to hunt at night. Owls can turn their heads 180 degrees. This makes it look like they might be able to turn their heads all the way around. There are a lot of beliefs about owls because of the way they look, especially their eyes and flexible necks. Many cultures believe that owls are very wise. Some cultures don't like owls because they think that they are bad luck and they believe that the high screams of the owl in the night mean that someone is going to die soon.

- Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Galileo Galilei was born in Pisa, Italy, in 1564. His family was poor, but Galileo's parents paid for him to go to school. At first Galileo planned to become a doctor, but he changed his mind. He liked a different kind of science—the kind we now call physics. In Galileo's time, not much was known about how objects moved. Centuries earlier, a Greek named Aristotle had written down his ideas about motion. Galileo did experiments that showed how things really moved. For example, Aristotle thought that a heavier object would fall faster than a lighter one of the same size and shape. Then Galileo tested the idea. He dropped two balls from a high tower and discovered that they hit the ground at the same time!

In later years, Galileo became interested in how the stars and planets move. He watched the night sky with a telescope he built himself. Once again, he saw things no one had ever seen before. For example, he saw that the moon was bumpy. Galileo also realized from his observations that the Earth was moving around the sun.

Unfortunately, Galileo's statements got him into trouble. Most people at that time believed that the Earth was at the centre of the universe with the sun travelling around it, but Galileo said it was untrue and was sent to jail. Galileo died in 1642, but his work helped to change the world. He is sometimes called the "father of modern science" because he showed us how important it is to look carefully at things and to test out ideas with experiments.

- Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Galileo Galilei was born in Pisa, Italy, in 1564. His family was poor, but Galileo's parents paid for him to go to school. At first Galileo planned to become a doctor, but he changed his mind. He liked a different kind of science—the kind we now call physics. In Galileo's time, not much was known about how objects moved. Centuries earlier, a Greek named Aristotle had written down his ideas about motion. Galileo did experiments that showed how things really moved. For example, Aristotle thought that a heavier object would fall faster than a lighter one of the same size and shape. Then Galileo tested the idea. He dropped two balls from a high tower and discovered that they hit the ground at the same time!

In later years, Galileo became interested in how the stars and planets move. He watched the night sky with a telescope he built himself. Once again, he saw things no one had ever seen before. For example, he saw that the moon was bumpy. Galileo also realized from his observations that the Earth was moving around the sun.

Unfortunately, Galileo's statements got him into trouble. Most people at that time believed that the Earth was at the centre of the universe with the sun travelling around it, but Galileo said it was untrue and was sent to jail. Galileo died in 1642, but his work helped to change the world. He is sometimes called the "father of modern science" because he showed us how important it is to look carefully at things and to test out ideas with experiments.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

- Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions below:

What happens if you don't get enough sleep? Randy Gardner, a high school student in the United States, wanted to discover. He designed an experiment on the effects of not sleeping for a long time. With doctors watching him carefully, Gardner stayed awake for eleven days and nights without sleep! What was the effect on Gardner?

After 24 hours without sleep, Gardner started having trouble in reading and watching television. The words and pictures were too blurry. By the third day, he was having trouble doing things with his hands. By the fourth day, Gardner was seeing strange things. For example, when he saw a street sign, he thought it was a person. He also imagined he was a famous football player. Over the next few days, Gardner's speech became so strange that people couldn't understand him. He also had trouble remembering things. By the eleventh day, Gardner couldn't pass a counting test. When Gardner finally went to bed, he slept for 14 hours and 45 minutes. He needed 4 nights to return to his normal sleep.

Even though Gardner recovered, scientists believe that going without sleep can be dangerous. During your lifetime, you will probably spend 25 years or more sleeping. But why? Scientists don't know for sure. Some scientists think we sleep in order to keep brain cells healthy. Other scientists think that sleep helps the body to grow. Whatever the reason, we know that it is important to get enough sleep.

a) From a, b, c, and d, choose the correct answer in the following: (6 X 2 = 12 Marks)

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully then answer the questions below:

The United Arab Emirates is a country with a lot of oil. Oil brings the country billions of dollars each year. So why is the UAE building a city that uses very little or no oil? The answer is simple: oil will not last forever. But there is another resource people can use instead of oil; it is the sun.

In fact, engineers are now building a new city that uses mostly solar energy to get electricity. The city is called Masdar, and it is about 32 km from Abu Dhabi. If it is a success, Masdar will be the first city in the world that uses little or no oil.

Masdar is a small city–only 6 square kilometers. In the future, it will hold 50,000 people, more than 1,000 companies, and a university. Its streets are very narrow. The houses are close to each other. The shade from the houses helps keep the streets cool.

There are no cars on the streets of Masdar. Because the city is so small, people can walk to most places. If they get tired, they can use small solar-powered vehicles which move underground, like a subway. These vehicles have no drivers. People just tell the vehicle where they want to go, and it takes them there.

Masdar will reuse as many resources as possible. It will reuse about 80 percent of its water and change most of its waste into more energy. People in Masdar are even using building materials that they can reuse in the future.

Can this city really be successful? No one knows. But if it is, there could be other low energy cities around the world in the future.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully then answer the questions below:

The United Arab Emirates is a country with a lot of oil. Oil brings the country billions of dollars each year. So why is the UAE building a city that uses very little or no oil? The answer is simple: oil will not last forever. But there is another resource people can use instead of oil; it is the sun.

In fact, engineers are now building a new city that uses mostly solar energy to get electricity. The city is called Masdar, and it is about 32 km from Abu Dhabi. If it is a success, Masdar will be the first city in the world that uses little or no oil.

Masdar is a small city–only 6 square kilometers. In the future, it will hold 50,000 people, more than 1,000 companies, and a university. Its streets are very narrow. The houses are close to each other. The shade from the houses helps keep the streets cool.

There are no cars on the streets of Masdar. Because the city is so small, people can walk to most places. If they get tired, they can use small solar-powered vehicles which move underground, like a subway. These vehicles have no drivers. People just tell the vehicle where they want to go, and it takes them there.

Masdar will reuse as many resources as possible. It will reuse about 80 percent of its water and change most of its waste into more energy. People in Masdar are even using building materials that they can reuse in the future.

Can this city really be successful? No one knows. But if it is, there could be other low energy cities around the world in the future.

a. Choose the correct answer from a, b, c and d: (6 x 2= 12 Ms)

    a) places
    b) vehicles
    c) people
    d) drivers

12. Masdar is a city in the United Arab Emirates that:
    a) will not have any buildings or houses.
    b) will use up all the country's oil resources.
    c) will change most of its waste into energy.
    d) will not hold any companies or universities.

13. In Masdar, people can walk to most places because:
    a) the streets are narrow and cool.
    b) the city is about 32 km from Abu Dhabi.
    c) the vehicles are small, and there are no drivers.
    d) the city is so small, and there aren't any cars.

14. The purpose of the writer in the passage is to:
    a) discuss the dangers of using oil.
    b) describe people's life in Abu Dhabi.
    c) give information about Masdar City.
    d) compare between cities in the past and now.

b. Answer the following questions: (2 x 2= 4 Ms)

15. Why is the UAE building a city that uses very little or no oil?

Because oil will not last forever.

16. How does Masdar City get most of its electricity?

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully then answer the questions below:

What do the astronauts on the Space Shuttle do with their free time? Sure, technically they're on the job 24/7 a week, but when they have free time, they like to do the same things they do on earth. For example, astronauts spend about two hours every day exercising. This is really important to make sure that their bodies keep working. Remember, on earth, when we are awake, we move against the force of gravity, and our muscles and bones have to support our bodies. In space, there is no gravity, so the body doesn't do any of this supporting work. This means that the body can become weak.

Astronauts use treadmills to exercise. A treadmill is a machine for running in one place. A wide belt moves under the astronaut's feet, so it feels like he is moving forward while running, though he is actually staying in place. The only real difference between this treadmill in space and treadmills you may have seen on earth is that the astronaut has to be strapped onto the treadmill in space so that he doesn't float away.

As far as the rest of their free time, the astronauts bring some of their personal belongings into space. They can read books or listen to music. At the International Space Station, they can also watch movies on DVD, and once a week they can talk to their families. Many of the astronauts enjoy taking photographs from the Space Shuttle's windows.
