Term 2 Final Reading Test

New Restaurant

Sami owned a restaurant and ran it with his two children, Joe and Amy. He was always proud of his children and how they supported the restaurant. Business was such a success that they expanded into a new restaurant on the other side of the city. Sami now had to decide who would become the manager of the new restaurant.

Amy immediately started to show that she had the skills for this. She changed the menu, and got many positive reviews about the new items on there. She even started researching how she might buy some of the ingredients cheaper to change prices. Meanwhile, Joe acted as if he were already the CEO of the new restaurant, and he even behaved in this way around customers. Soon, the complaints started reaching Sami and helped make his mind up.

When it came to the big decision day, Sami gathered his children and explained that he was pleased with the plan Amy had made and that she should manage the new restaurant. If Joe weren't so arrogant, he would have been proud of Amy. Instead, they started a big quarrel. Once Amy and Joe's conflict settled, there was an uncomfortable silence as no one knew what to say to each other. After what felt like forever, Sami finally broke the silence. He told them that he would be proud of both his children, no matter who he had chosen to run the restaurant.

Later that month, Joe went to visit Amy in her new restaurant. As he arrived, he couldn't believe what a nice part of the city it was in. He sat down and ordered, and it pained him to admit the lobster sandwiches were delicious. "I think this place will be a success," said Amy.

"Only if you change the decoration, will it," Joe stated back. keeping his same attitude towards Amy.
