John Chaney, one of America's most famous writers of adventure tales, was born in California in 1876. During his life, John worked at many jobs. His various life experiences would become the source for his writing.

John loved to read. As a teenager, he spent many hours reading books at the Oakland, California, public library. He joined college at the University of California at Berkeley, but he stayed for only six months. He thought Berkeley was dull and wanted to do something exciting.

While living in different cities, John wrote stories about working people. He knew and understood their problems. He worked as a sailor, farmer, factory worker and a miner, to name just a few of his many jobs.

John grew up near the waterfront in Oakland. When he was fifteen years old, he bought a small sailboat called a sloop. Later he sailed to Japan on a schooner, which is a much larger sailing boat.

As an adult, John worked as a miner digging for gold. During this time, he discovered that people he worked with enjoyed listening to the stories he made up with his rich imagination. John entertained the miners with story after story. Later, using his experiences, he created many more colourful stories.

John lived an exciting life. Once John determined that he was going to be a writer, nothing could stop him. His goal was to write at least one thousand words every day. Read the following text carefully then answer the question below:

An owl is a bird. Owls are nocturnal animals, which means they are awake at night and asleep during the day. Owls are predators. This means they hunt for the food they eat. Owls feed on mice, other small animals, insects, and even fish. That's why many farmers keep owls on their farms to get rid of mice. The owls' soft, fluffy feathers make their flight almost silent. They have very good hearing that helps them to hunt well in the dark. Their sharp beaks and claws make it easy to catch their prey. Owls lay about three to four eggs. They nest in holes in trees and mountains. They usually lay their eggs in spring.

The owl's eyes are unusual. Like most predators, an owl's eyes face forward. The owl cannot move its eyes. Owls can see very far away but they can't see up close very well at all. Fortunately, they use their ability to see far away, even in low light, to hunt at night. Owls can turn their heads 180 degrees. This makes it look like they might be able to turn their heads all the way around. There are a lot of beliefs about owls because of the way they look, especially their eyes and flexible necks. Many cultures believe that owls are very wise. Some cultures don't like owls because they think that they are bad luck. B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following text carefully then answer the question below:

Deserts cover more than one-fifth of the Earth's land area. Despite the common idea that deserts are hot, there are cold deserts as well. The largest hot desert in the world, northern Africa's Sahara, reaches temperatures of up to 122 degrees Fahrenheit during the day. However, some deserts are always cold, such as the Gobi Desert in Asia and the vast polar deserts of the Antarctic and Arctic.

Deserts are the driest habitats on Earth. This dryness makes it difficult for most plants and animals to survive. Although it can rain in a desert, these areas receive less than ten inches of rainwater per year. In hot deserts, daytime temperatures can soar over 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

Despite the harsh conditions, deserts are full of life. Plants and animals there have adapted to live with very little water. Some plants, like cacti, can store water in their stems and survive for long periods without rain. Other plants grow very long roots to reach water deep underground. Many desert animals are active only at night when it is cooler. Others stay in the shade of rocks or underground during the day. Animals get the water they need from their food, such as seeds or other animals.

The dry conditions of a desert habitat are challenging, but plants and animals have adapted to their surroundings in remarkable ways to survive.

Then, she started watching her father's workers make cheese. When she was ten, she made some cheese by herself for the first time. "It wasn't great," she says, "but the workers told me what I was doing wrong and that helped me to slowly get better."

Pat always needs good milk for her cheese, but she doesn't have to buy it. Her mother and father keep 20 cows on their farm. Pat can just ask them when she needs more. Last year, Pat's neighbour gave her a young cow to keep and look after, but it doesn't produce milk to make cheese, yet.

Pat and her family make many types of cheese. Recently, they won a prize for one of them. "It's been great for helping people find out about us," says Pat. "Last month we started selling cheese in New Zealand. People there read about our prize in a food magazine. Soon we're going to do some advertisements, too."

Pat's next idea is to post online recipes for cooking with cheese. "One of my favourites is cheese with eggs for breakfast. It's great! B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

From the grizzly bear hunting for fish in a river to the black rhinoceros running across the plains of Africa, these animals share the Earth with us. They fascinate us with their beauty, and we love learning about their habits. But just loving them is not enough. These animals are endangered. Many of them are dying, and without special care, they may someday disappear from Earth.

Africa was once filled with plenty of wild animals, but not anymore. One of these animals, the black rhinoceros, is powerful and can be dangerous. However, its strength can't always help it escape hunters. Many hunters kill rhinos for their valuable horns. This has caused the black rhino to be placed on the endangered species list. The elephant is also endangered and is killed for its ivory tusks.

Unfortunately, it is people who cause many of the problems that animals face. We change and pollute their habitats. We hunt them for skins, tusks, furs, and horns. We destroy animals that get in the way of farming or building, removing them from their natural habitats or taking them home as pets.

What can you do to help endangered animals? Make an effort to support zoos and wildlife groups. You can also be a smart shopper and never buy a pet that has been taken from the wild. Allowing even one species to die out affects other living things and changes our world.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

The Koala Bear is one of the cutest animals in the world. It has a small body, grey coloured fur, and a white belly, and it does not have a tail. What's funny about the Koala Bear is that it is not a bear at all!

The Koala is actually a marsupial. Marsupials, like Kangaroos, are animals that have pockets where they keep their young. A newborn koala is called a joey and when it is born, it does not look like the grown-up koala we know. It is born blind and without ears or fur.

Soon after its birth, the joey goes into the mother's pocket, and continues to grow its eyes, legs and fur for six months. The young Koala then leaves the pocket and mostly stays on the mother's back to grow for six more months. It stays there until it's ready to climb up the trees, sleep on the branches, and eat on its own.

Koalas spend most of their lives in trees called "gum trees" and only go to the ground if necessary. Living in these trees helps them to easily reach their food and stay away from wild animals that might attack. Although gum leaves are poisonous to other animals, they are the only food koalas eat. The koala's stomach has special bacteria that can take energy and water from the leaves. When they are not climbing trees, koalas sleep up to 20 hours a day. A grown-up koala can live to be around 15 to 20 years old.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

Many people who are looking to get a pet dog get a puppy. There are many reasons why people get puppies. After all, puppies are cute, friendly, and playful. There are good reasons why you should think of getting an adult dog instead. When you get a puppy, you must teach it how to behave and make sure that the puppy is housebroken so that it does not go to the bathroom inside the house and teach it not to jump up on your guests or chew on your shoes. You must train the puppy to walk on a leash. This is a lot of work.

On the other hand, when you get an adult dog, there is a good chance that it will already know how to do all the previously mentioned things. Puppies also have a lot of energy and want to play all the time. This can be fun, but you might not want to play as much as your puppy does. Puppies will not always sleep through the night or let you relax as you watch television. On the other hand, most adult dogs will wait for you to play with them. What is more, they will sleep when you are sleeping and are happy to watch television on the couch right beside you. So, if you are looking to get a dog for a pet, you should think about getting an adult dog.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

Learning a new language is an important thing that we should seek in our life. This language helps us to communicate with the other side of the world. It also gives us varied chances of jobs. Today, millions of people want to learn and improve their English but it is difficult to find the best method. Is it better to study in Britain or to study in your own country?

The advantages of going to Britain seem obvious. Firstly, you will be able to listen to the language all the time. You will be completely surrounded by the language. Another advantage is that you have to speak the language if you are with other people. In your country, it is always possible, in the class, to speak Arabic if you want to and the learning is slower.

On the other hand, there are also advantages to staying at home to study. You don't have to make big changes to your life. As well as this, it is also a lot cheaper than going to Britain. If you have a good teacher in your country, you can learn in a more concentrated way.

So, in conclusion, I think if you have enough time and enough money, the best choice is to spend some time in the UK. This is simply not possible for most people, so being here in your country is the only option available. The most important thing to do in this situation is to maximize your opportunities to use English whenever possible.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

Galileo Galilei was born in Pisa, Italy, in 1564. His family was poor, but Galileo's parents paid for him to go to school. At first Galileo planned to become a doctor, but he changed his mind. He liked a different kind of science the kind we now call physics. In Galileo's time, not much was known about how objects moved. Centuries earlier, a Greek named Aristotle had written down his ideas about motion. Galileo did experiments that showed how things really moved. For example, Aristotle thought that a heavier object would fall faster than a lighter one of the same size and shape. Then Galileo tested the idea. He dropped two balls from a high tower and discovered that they hit the ground at the same time!

In later years, Galileo became interested in how the stars and planets move. He watched the night sky with a telescope he built himself. Once again, he saw things no one had ever seen before. For example, he saw that the moon was bumpy. Galileo also realized from his observations that the Earth was moving around the sun.

Unfortunately, Galileo's statements got him into trouble. Most people at that time believed that the Earth was at the centre of the universe with the sun travelling around it, but Galileo said it was untrue and was sent to jail. Galileo died in 1642, but his work helped to change the world. He is sometimes called the "father of modern science" because he showed us how important it is to look carefully at things and to test out ideas with experiments.
