Reading comprehension

Read the following passage, then answer the questions below:-

Bayt Abdullah Children's Hospice is the first children's hospice in the Middle East. It was officially opened in 2011 in Kuwait to provide special care for children with life-threatening illnesses. The idea of the hospice came from the family of a young boy called Abdullah, who wanted a place where sick children could feel safe and loved.

The hospice offers medical treatment, but it also gives emotional and social support. Families can stay in comfortable rooms that look like home, not like a hospital. There are playrooms, art and music studios, a library, and even a cinema. Children can enjoy the garden with flowers and fountains, while parents meet counselors who guide and support them. They feel more relaxed and hopeful after the visit.

Bayt Abdullah has a home-care service, Doctors and nurses can visit children in their houses if they are too weak to travel. people in Kuwait support it through charity events so it can continue helping children and their families.
