Many people spend their summer holidays in one of the many cities in Italy. Each city has something different to offer.

During the 15th century, Venice became one of the richest cities in Europe. It continues to grow today. Some say that Venice never changes because it looks just as beautiful the first, second or third time you visit. There are more than 150 canals crossed by 400 bridges. So, much of the city can be seen on foot.

Others prefer the small town of Lecce in the south of the country. Famous for its olive oil and fish restaurants, Lecce attracts a lot of Italian visitors. It is busy in August when people gather for the flower festival. Its fine houses are usually decorated all year round.

The mountain to the north of Milan is a place for skiing in the winter and walking in the summer. It appears that Italy has something for everyone; each city offers something different.

1- What is the text mainly about?

a. Italian people

b. Cities of Italy

c. History of Italy

d. Mountains of Italy

(1) People take holidays for many reasons. Some want to relax, while others want to explore new places and learn about history and culture. Qatar is a country that offers all of these experiences. It has a rich tradition, beautiful natural areas, and modern buildings. Although Qatar has changed a lot in the past century, visitors can still enjoy its traditional side.

(2) One popular activity is the desert safari. It helps tourists understand Qatar's mix of old and new. The trip goes across the sand dunes in special off-road vehicles, which feels like riding a roller coaster. Other activities include sandboarding, camel riding, and swimming.

(3) In the past, people moved through the desert with their camels, stopping to set up camps. The word "Bedouin" comes from the Arabic word badawi, meaning "people of the desert." On an overnight safari, tourists can sleep in a Bedouin-style camp and experience this traditional lifestyle.

(4) Qataris also have a long history connected to the sea. In the past, many people worked in pearl diving. Today, scuba diving is a popular activity for tourists, and Qatar's sunny weather makes it enjoyable all year. More visitors are choosing Qatar for their holidays because it offers so much to see and do.
