Unit 7 / Media (Argumentative)

“A lot of people believe that media is a platform for diverse voices to be heard; while others argue that media promotes harmful stereotypes.”

1- Arguments for media:

- being updated with the latest news
- getting to know different cultures
- promoting social issues.
- making heroes out of ordinary people.
- Showing the achievements of the country

2- Arguments against media:

- being a big waste of time.
- distracting us from important things
- teaching violence and destructive thinking.
- glorifying certain issues.
- harming our eyesight.

To sum it all up, I strongly believe that media's impact on our life is undeniable but we must be aware of how to use it properly.

Topic

A lot of people believe that media is a platform for diverse voices to be heard; while others argue that media promotes harmful stereotypes. In other words, This essay will show the arguments for and against using media.

On the one hand, a lot of people are for using media for so many reasons. They believe it keeps us updated with the latest news and is considered an important source of information. They also insist that media helps us know the different cultures of people around the world. Additionally, it promotes social issues such as health and education. One of the best advantages of media from their point of view is that it can make heroes out of ordinary men and women. Last but not least, they argue that it is an important tool to show the achievements of our countries.

On the other hand, a considerable number of people are against the use of media. First of all, they think that using media a lot can be a big waste of time and can distract us from studying, working and spending time with the family. Secondly, they consider that it can teach children violence and destructive thinking patterns. Thirdly, their central point is that some media platforms glorify certain issues. Fourthly, they believe that media has the power to alter public opinion. Last but not least, they argue that it can negatively affect our health by harming our eyes.

To sum it all up, I strongly believe that media's impact on our life is undeniable but we must be aware of how to use it properly.

Unit 8 / Television watching habits (Argumentative)

“A lot of people believe that watching television offers valuable insights into different cultures and perspectives; while others argue that excessive television viewing hinders the development of crucial social skills.”

1- Arguments for watching TV:

- providing entertainment
- being an educational tool
- offering latest news and information
- making us think about life choices
- developing imagination

2- Arguments against watching TV:

- leading to obesity
- promoting inactivity
- causing health problems
- missing out on real life experiences
- teaching violence and unhealthy behaviour

To sum it all up, I strongly believe that we should be mindful of our TV viewing habits to ensure that it enriches our lives.

Topic

A lot of people believe that watching television offers valuable insights into different cultures and perspectives; while others argue that excessive television viewing hinders the development of crucial social skills. In other words, some people are for and others are against watching television.

On the one hand, a lot of people are for watching television for so many reasons. One key argument is that it provides entertainment. People can enjoy movies, shows, and sports. Additionally, they think that television can be educational. Many channels broadcast programs that teach about history, science, and culture, making learning fun and accessible for everyone. They often argue that television also helps keep viewers informed on the latest news. Moreover, they believe that it makes us think about our life choices and develops our imagination.

On the other hand, some people think that watching TV can affect us negatively. First of all, they believe that watching too much TV can promote inactivity. That's why it can lead to a lot of health problems including obesity. They insist on the fact that spending too much time watching TV can make us miss out on real life experiences. They are also for the idea that it can teach us violence and unhealthy behaviour such as taking risks and eating fast food.

To sum it all up, I strongly believe that we should be mindful of our TV viewing habits to ensure that it enriches our lives.

Unit 9 / Uses of cameras (Argumentative)

“A lot of people believe that surveillance cameras have become of great importance in modern society; while others argue that they are considered an unacceptable trespass on their privacy.”

1- Arguments for surveillance cameras:

- monitor the speed of cars
- reducing accidents
- solving the problem of traffic jam
- being easier to find criminals
- protecting people’s lives

2- Arguments against surveillance cameras:

- privacy is important
- feeling like being watched
- restricting people’s freedom
- feeling less comfortable

To sum it all up, I strongly believe in the important role of surveillance cameras in protecting the society.

Topic

A lot of people believe that surveillance cameras have become of great importance in modern society; while others argue that they are considered an unacceptable trespass on their privacy. This essay will explore the key arguments for and against the use of surveillance cameras in public places.

On the one hand, a lot of people are for the use of surveillance cameras for so many reasons. From their point of view, the most important role of surveillance cameras is to monitor the speed of cars. In other words, we will be able to manage and reduce car accidents. They also consider that it is a good way to solve the problem of traffic jam. In addition to that, with the help of surveillance cameras, it has become easier to find criminals. In short, they believe that they have the ability to protect people’s lives in many ways.

On the other hand, some people argue against setting up surveillance cameras. They have concerns about their privacy. They hate the feeling of being watched. So, lacking their freedom is a reason why they are against this idea. Last but not least, they make people feel less comfortable while driving

To sum it all up, I strongly believe in the important role of surveillance cameras in protecting the society. Without them, we would have lived in a complete chaos.

Unit 10 / Accidents (Descriptive)

“Every day, countless individuals are impacted by car accidents. Therefore, they are considered a significant problem in our modern world.”

1- How it happened:

- terrible crash
- driving fast
- bad weather
- thinking of going home quickly
- not paying attention on the road

2- Its dangerous effects:

- serious scars and injuries
- being exposed to death
- Leaving families heartbroken
- being late for school and work
- miss out on important chances

To wrap things up, car accidents are a serious problem that can affect everyone. So, we should pay attention and drive safely to protect your life and the lives of others.

Topic

Every day, countless individuals are impacted by car accidents. Therefore, they are considered a significant problem in our modern world. In this essay, I'm going to describe how a car accident happened and its dangerous effects.

One day, I got out of college and started walking towards the bus station to catch my bus home. Then, I heard a terrible sound and I saw two cars crashed in the middle of the road. One of the car drivers admitted he was driving faster than usual. It was raining heavily and he just finished a long shift at work. He felt tired, but he wanted to go home quickly and unfortunately, he wasn't paying attention on the road. The police arrived and started dealing with the issue.

Genuinely, car accidents can cause a range of devastating effects. On top of that, they can cause serious scars and injuries. Sometimes, it can lead to tragic death. In fact, the previously mentioned effects can leave families in pain and heartbroken. We shouldn't forget that accidents on the road cause traffic jam and make us late for work and school. In other words, they make us miss out on important chances.

To wrap things up, car accidents are a serious problem that can affect everyone. So, you should pay attention and drive safely to protect your life and the lives of others.

Unit 11 / The planet in danger (Argumentative)

“The responsibility for maintaining a clean environment is a subject of ongoing debate. Some argue that it is the duty of the governments; while others maintain it is the responsibility of everyone.”

1- responsibility of the government:

- having the power to make big changes
- putting severe laws
- setting up nature reserves
- building recycling plants
- educate people about environmental issues

2- responsibility of everyone:

- small acts can make big differences
- community clean-ups
- reducing pollution
- stop cutting down trees
- stop hunting animals
- saving energy

At the end, I personally believe that both the governments and the individuals should work together. This is because a healthy environment needs both strong leadership and responsible citizens.

Topic

The responsibility for maintaining a clean environment is a subject of ongoing debate. Some argue that it is the duty of the governments; while others maintain it is a collective responsibility. This essay will show both views.

On the one hand, some people think that keeping the environment clean is the responsibility of the government. Actually, they argue that governments have the power and money to make big changes. They can put severe laws to stop pollution and make sure people follow them. Another key argument is that they can build recycling plants to get rid of rubbish. Additionally, they believe that the governments can raise awareness and educate people about the environmental issues.

On the other hand, many people argue that everyone has a role to play. They believe that small things can make big changes. First of all, they think we should start some clean-up campaigns. Secondly, they insist that we must reduce all kinds of pollution. Thirdly, they assert that we must stop hunting rare animals and put an end to the process of cutting down trees. Lastly, they are for the idea that we should do our best to save energy at homes.

At the end, I personally believe that both the governments and the individuals should work together. This is because a healthy environment needs both strong leadership and responsible citizens.

Unit 12 / The power of nature (Descriptive)

“Natural disasters are catastrophic events caused by the Earth’s natural processes that can devastate human lives.”

1- How people behave after an earthquake:

- sense of fear and shock
- screams of terror everywhere
- people rush out of their homes
- air filled with dust
- cracked roads

2- What the scene is like:

- buildings are destroyed
- chaos everywhere
- homeless people
- sirens and emergency everywhere
- erupting fires

At the end, I personally believe that both the governments and the individuals should work together. This is because a healthy environment needs both strong leadership and responsible citizens.

Topic

Natural disasters are catastrophic events caused by the Earth’s natural processes that can devastate human lives. This essay will explore how people behave after an earthquake and what the scene is like.

People behave differently after an earthquake. Initially, there is a sense of fear and shock that people start screaming. Then, they check on their beloved ones and rush out of their homes. Some people find it hard to breathe because the air is filled with dust. Sometimes, when the earthquake is tough, most streets will be cracked.

The scene is like an immense power of nature. Buildings are destroyed. Streets are a complete chaos. People become homeless. You can hear the sounds of sirens and emergency everywhere. Fires can erupt causing another level of danger.

At the end, I believe we should educate ourselves on how to lessen the impact the natural disasters because unfortunately, we can’t stop them.
