Unit 1 Seeing the world

1 Armchair travel

1 Reading

Terry is consulting a travel agent. Put the conversation in the correct order.

- 1 I have my holiday next month and I can't decide where I want to go.  A
- 2 No problem. I'm sure we can help you. First of all, what do you enjoy doing?  B
- 3 Jordan? What can I do in Jordan?  G
- 4 The Middle East? Have you thought about going to Jordan?  F
- 5 That's good. I like adventures, too. Are you interested in travelling out of the country?  D
- 6 I like visiting exotic places and having a little adventure, too.  C
- 7 Wow! That sounds great!  I
- 8 Yes, I'd love to go to the Middle East.  E
- 9 So many things – you can visit the ruins at Petra, go to the Dead Sea, and there are water sports at Aqaba on the Red Sea, and hang-gliding if you feel adventurous.  H

2 Reading and writing

a Guess what the abbreviations associated with holiday advertisements mean.

Choose from the box.

one night	room only
bed and breakfast	single (ticket)
self-catering	return (ticket)

- S/C self-catering
- 1 Sgl Single (ticket)
- 2 R/O room only
- 3 Rtn return (ticket)
- 4 B&B bed and breakfast
- 5 1 Nt one night

b Complete the sentences with the words from exercise 2a.

- On a self-catering holiday, you cook for yourself, usually in an apartment.
- 1 A single ticket is in one direction only.
  - 2 With a return ticket, you can go and come back.
  - 3 bed and breakfast is a good idea if you like eating out at lunch and in the evening.
  - 4 room only is a good idea if you want to eat all your meals outside the hotel.
  - 5 I'm only staying there for one night.

c Match the advertisements with the people.

1 Mohammed Abdullah, 26
I'd like to take a holiday in Europe, somewhere a little bit special – I've visited Paris before. I like visiting museums. Maybe England?

2 Marty Reed, 47
I'd like to visit Asia and travel independently. I like travelling around by myself. Maybe Saudi Arabia or Jordan. Certainly more than a week – it will be a very long flight!

3 Jo Corren, 25
I'd like somewhere really different, but not too expensive – I'm not very good at managing money! I love swimming, water sports and eating good food.

4 Zahra Hadi, 36
It would be great to have a break in the sun. I love relaxing by the sea. I don't mind cooking for myself because it's easier with the children. I can get away for a week maximum.

Grammar builder: requesting and stating information using direct and indirect questions

Form:

Can you tell me where the museum is?

Do you know where the museum is?

- Direct questions use an auxiliary verb before the subject – be / do / can, etc.

Is it open today?

Can he swim?

- Indirect questions maintain the word order of a statement. They are usually considered more polite.

Do you know if it's open today?

Do you know if he can swim?

1 Grammar

a Circle the correct question form.

- a) Do he can swim?

2 Reading and writing

a Match the words with similar meanings.

- 1 a vacuum cleaner → a) to manufacture
 2 to make → b) a Hoover (British English)
 3 a carpet → c) a company
 4 a business → d) a rug

b Read the text.

The Vacuum Cleaner

In 1907, James Murray Spangler, from Ohio, built a machine for cleaning carpets. He was a cleaner in a department store in his town and he realised it would be easier to clean with a machine. His machine worked! Because he was not a businessman, he was not sure how to develop and sell his machine, so he went to a childhood friend. That friend was William H. Hoover. Hoover quickly realized that the machine was a great idea and he formed a company to manufacture it in 1908. Spangler worked for the company until his death seven years later, but it isn't his name that we are all familiar with today.

c Complete the notes.

- Original inventor: James Murray Spangler.
 What he invented: He built a machine for cleaning carpets.
 Developed by: William H. Hoover.
 What happened: Spangler worked for the company until he died, but only the Hoover name is remembered.

d Make sentences. They may be active or passive.

2 Reading and writing

a Read this article about fashion in food.

A food of fashion

In the 19th century, in Southern Italy, pizza was a flat round bread eaten only by poor people because it was cheap and nutritious. One day, in 1889, King Umberto I was travelling around his kingdom with his wife, Queen Margherita. The queen was fascinated to see so many people eating these flat loaves and sent one of her guards to fetch her one. She tried the bread ... and found that she enjoyed it very much.

It was not socially acceptable for a queen to eat the food of poor people, but Margherita was not going to give up her pizzas because of the customs of fashion. She sent for a famous chef, Rafaele Esposito, and ordered him to make her a special pizza. Esposito thought about this and, after he had baked the bread, he topped it with tomatoes, cheese and basil – red, white and green, the colours of the Italian flag. What was good enough for the queen was good enough for everyone and pizza became very fashionable throughout Italy. From there it spread to the rest of Europe, and then to just about every country in the world, changing as it travelled to fit in with local customs and ingredients.

b Answer the questions in your own words.

1 Why was pizza eaten by poor people?

Because it was cheap and nutritious.

2 Why didn't people like the queen eating pizza at first?

Because it was not socially acceptable for the queen to eat the food of the poor.

3 What was special about the choice of tomatoes, cheese and basil as a topping?

They had the colours of the Italian flag.

4 Why did pizza become popular in Italy?

Because it was good enough for the queen.

Shoppers Buy into Colour Code

Laundry detergent would not sell in brown boxes but cola cans are best in red, shoppers declared yesterday. A survey discovered 80% of consumers like their cans of tuna in blue or green, which is also the preferred colour for bags of sour cream and onion crisps.

The findings were the result of a survey of 400 shoppers.

It concluded that between a half and two-thirds of shoppers buy items on the basis of the attractiveness of their packaging, rather than the quality of their contents. Researcher Jan Walsh said: 'Packaging seems to be more important than the product inside.'

Complete the text with the words in the box.

$5,000	a meeting place	a waiter	attracted	his new business	a Young Entrepreneur award
invest	launched	set up	won	worked as	over 200 regular customers

Tom Bates (1) worked as
 (2) a waiter in a small café in Los Angeles when he got his first great idea. He quit his job and convinced his uncle John to (3) invest
 (4) $5,000 in his project. Tom wanted to (5) set up (6) a meeting place for young professionals. He noticed that young businessmen came into his café, usually by themselves, and did not seem to know each other. He thought it would be a good idea if there was somewhere they could go for a coffee and a sandwich, talk about their jobs, give each other tips and pass on information about opportunities in business. In 1999, Tom (7) launched
 (8) his new business, Talk Café, and within a year he (9) attracted (10) over 200 regular. Last year he (11) won customers
 (12) a Young Entrepreneur award.

Grammar builder: present perfect continuous vs. present perfect simple

Use:

- To describe actions or situations that continue to the present.
I've studied / I've been studying here for two years. (I still work here.)
- To emphasise that an activity has not finished, use the continuous form.
I've been reading a novel. (I'm still reading it.)
- To emphasise completion, use the simple form.
I've read War and Peace. (I've finished it.)

Form:

- Present perfect simple subject + has / have + past participle      I have read that book.
- Present perfect continuous subject + have / has + been + ing verb      I have been reading that book.

2 Grammar

b Now, add alternative answers to complete the phrases. One example has been done for you.

2 Reading and writing

a Read the letter.

Dear Uncle Alan,

I'm writing to you to let you know my good news. My exam results have just come through and, guess what? I didn't just pass them all – I got the best grades in the whole school!

I know you'll be pleased for me. You've always taken such an interest in my education, ever since I first started primary school.

And now I know I can go to university and take a degree in languages. As you know, I want to study Arabic because I'm so fascinated by the Middle East. But I've got a problem. I don't know whether to go straight to college in September or take a gap year. I know it would be sensible to start my degree as soon as possible. But taking a year out would also make sense. I could work for six months – maybe in a restaurant or a store – and save some money, and then spend a few months travelling in the area. I would get to improve my language skills and find out more about the culture. It would be so interesting.

What do you think I should do? I always value your advice. With much love, Robert

b Write short answers.

Why is Robert so happy?

Because he passed his exams with good grades.

1 Why will his uncle be pleased?

Because he has always taken an interest in Robert's education.

2 Why does he want to study his chosen subject?

Because he is fascinated by the Middle East.

3 Where would he like to go next year?

He would like to travel in the Middle East.

4 What advice would you give to Robert?

(student's answer)

- c Imagine that Robert decides to go to the Middle East for a few months. Give him three pieces of advice before he sets out on his travels and explain why.

b Complete the text with the verbs in brackets in the correct forms: past simple or past perfect.

When my dad retired from his job, he decided to have dinner with the guys from work at a special restaurant. He called everybody and invited _____ (invite) them to come. Some people (1) said _____ (say) yes, but a number of others (2) had made _____ (make) other plans for that evening, which was a pity. I arrived at the restaurant at 8.00 pm. I (3) had reserved _____ (reserve) a table weeks in advance because it's a popular place. When I went in, nobody (4) was _____ (be) there. Feeling a bit depressed, I (5) sat _____ (sit) at the table and (6) waited _____ (wait). A few minutes later, everyone arrived with a card and a leaving present. They (7) had hidden _____ (hide) around the corner as a joke! We all (8) had _____ (have) a wonderful evening in the end.

- c Great Expectations was written in 1860 and is one of the most famous books by the great English novelist, Charles Dickens. Read the text.

One dark evening, a small boy called Pip met a frightening man, a convict called Magwitch. Magwitch had escaped from a prison ship on its way to Australia, and he terrified Pip into stealing some food for him. Magwitch was caught (though he did not tell the police that Pip had stolen food for him), and continued to his exile in Australia.

Pip and Joe

Pip's parents were dead and he lived with his older sister and her husband, a blacksmith called Joe. They were poor, and Pip's only opportunity in life was to become a blacksmith like Joe. But one day, while Pip was learning his new job, a lawyer from London visited him. The lawyer told Pip that he had inherited a lot of money from an anonymous benefactor. The only rich person Pip had ever known was an old lady called Miss Havisham, who had been friendly to him when he was a child.

The lawyer told Pip that he must go to London immediately where he would have enough money to study and become a gentleman. Some time later, Pip discovered the true identity of his benefactor – it was not Miss Havisham, but Magwitch, the convict he had helped all those years ago and who had just arrived back in London. In Australia, Magwitch had become a rich farmer and had decided to help the boy he had terrified so long ago. However, the police were hunting Magwitch because he had escaped from his Australian exile. Pip tried to help the convict escape, but finally Magwitch was caught and died in prison.

a Circle the correct words.

My life (1) was / has been / used to be simple. In 1988, I (2) have been living / was living / had lived in a nice apartment in New York City. I (3) was having / have had / had a good job at a small publishing company and a lot of friends. Everything changed in 1989. That year I (4) had had / have had / was having an early holiday and I (5) had just got / was just getting / have just got back to work when my boss (6) had asked / asked / was asking me to do an interview with a young painter in Greenwich Village. Well, to make a long story short, the young man I (7) met / had met / have met that day was a forger of famous old paintings when he wasn't doing his own work – and I discovered this in the interview. He was sent to prison and I (8) was / have been / had been a famous journalist ever since. My life isn't so simple any more, but I love it!

b Complete the paragraph with the correct forms of the verbs in the box. You can use one verb more than once.

work	quit	move	meet	live	have	die	be	decide
------	------	------	------	------	------	-----	----	--------

Ted (1) had been living with his father for 40 years when I (2) met him.
 He (3) wasn't married, but I think he (4) had had a wife years before. He never spoke about it, but someone told me she had died in an accident. When I met him, he (5) was working in a factory, eight hours a day, six days a week and never complained. Then his father (6) died.
 Ted (7) decided to change his life completely. He (8) quit his job and (9) moved out. Since then he (10) has been living happily on a small farm in Maine.

c These are the questions a reporter asked Ted. Match the questions and his answers.

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 1 Before you came here, where did you work?                        | a) When I decided to move here.             |
| 2 Do you have any regrets? e                                | b) That's none of your business, young man. |
| 3 Have you ever played baseball? c                          | c) No, I don't like sports.                 |
| 4 How long have you lived here? g                           | d) After my father died.                    |
| 5 What was the happiest moment in your life? a              | e) None at all.                             |
| 6 When was the first time you thought of moving to Maine? d | f) In a factory.                            |
| 7 Have you ever been married? b                             | g) For 10 years.                            |

2 Writing

a A reporter is interviewing Eric Jones, a senior policeman. Complete the reporter's questions. Use the words to help you.

- Reporter: (1) How long / policeman? How long have you been a policeman?
- Jones: Nearly 30 years now.
- Reporter: (2) How old / join the police force? How old were you when you joined the police force?
- Jones: I was 20.
- Reporter: (3) Always want / be / policeman? Did you always want to be a policeman?
- Jones: No, I didn't. When I was at school I wanted to be a doctor.
- Reporter: (4) Why / change / mind? Why did you change your mind?
- Jones: I wasn't very good at science!
- Reporter: (5) Ever / think / change / job? Do you ever think about changing your job?
- Jones: No, never. I've always loved the job, and I still do.
- Reporter: (6) What / greatest achievement? What is / has been your greatest achievement?
- Jones: Probably when I tracked down and arrested the famous Diamond Robbers in 1996.

b Now write up your interview as a newspaper report. student's own answer
