Reading:

Read the passage bellow carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

Qatar is a small country in the Gulf area in Asia and it has quite a small population. About 2.5 million people live there. Most of them live in or around the capital, Doha, which is the main center for culture and commerce. The rest of the country is mostly desert except for some vegetation in the north. The climate, in general, is hot and humid in summer though the temperature decreases during the winter months.

The people of Qatar are very friendly and generous. They live in peace and security. They used to work in fishing and pearling, but nowadays a lot of them work in trade and business. Some of them work in oil industry, which has a great effect on economy.

The official language in Qatar is Arabic and the official religion is Islam. Both of them affect the nation's culture and tradition. People also use English in their daily life and many businessmen use it in their trade

The country has some wonderful places for tourists to visit and many things to do. Last summer, Tom visited Qatar and saw old forts and beautiful museums. He also went shopping in big modern stores.
